LANSING

NATIONAL REGISTER OF HISTORIC PLACES

The Capital Bank Tower (Boji Tower) in Lansing was recently listed in the National Register of Historic Places. The 1929-31 bank office tower, which has a matching 1967 addition, was constructed for owner Ransom E. Olds and is one of the few remaining buildings directly associated with Olds, the Lansing auto pioneer. Listing in the national register, sought by the owners, will facilitate a donation of a historic preservation easement.
